This paper is concerned with god Nt, an uncommon god in the ancient Egyptian religion. The earliest mention of the name of the god Nt dates back to the Middle Kingdom and his only representation dates back to the 19th Dynasty, New Kingdom. This paper aims to introduce a comprehensive study of this god through the textual and representational evidence; it aims to discuss the different forms of writing his name and epithets in the ancient Egyptian language and their meaning, and finally, his role and his relations to other gods in ancient Egyptian religion.

Abstract

This paper is concerned with god Nt, an uncommon god in the ancient Egyptian religion. The earliest mention of the name of the god Nt dates back to the Middle Kingdom and his only representation dates back to the 19th Dynasty, New Kingdom. This paper aims to introduce a comprehensive study of this god through the textual and representational evidence; it aims to discuss the different forms of writing his name and epithets in the ancient Egyptian language and their meaning, and finally, his role and his relations to other gods in ancient Egyptian religion.

Keywords:

Coffin Texts; Deir El-Madina; Nt; Wadjmes Stela.
Introduction:

There were many gods and goddesses worshipped in ancient Egypt. Some of them rose to prominence to become supreme gods with main cult centers and temples dedicated to them. There were certain gods some of whom patronized a nome or more. Moreover, there were local gods, some of whom gained fame while others gained no attention. This is probably because of the fewer sources that deal with such gods. \( Nt \) is one of these uncommon gods whose name was referred to two times in the Middle Kingdom Coffin Texts. The only representation of \( Nt \) dates back to the 19\textsuperscript{th} Dynasty, Ramesside Period on the Stela of Wadjmes, which is preserved at the Turin Museum.

1. Textual sources:

\( Nt \) was mentioned in CT 684\(^1\). The inscriptions ascribe this coffin to Djehuty-Nakht\(^2\) from El-Barsha. It dates back to the 11\textsuperscript{th} Dynasty, the reign of King Senusert I. (20.1822-27). The spell occurs in the coffin’s outer side, which is now kept at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. It is written in two columns as follows:

\textbf{Text:}

\begin{center}
\begin{tabular}{|c|c|}
\hline
N & \\
\hline
\end{tabular}
\end{center}

\textbf{Transliteration:} \textit{twt tr mi \( \text{N} \) \( \text{pn Nt} \) ii \( \text{n.k tr (ir).k mi} \) \( \text{ssp} \) \( \text{m Xrt-nTr} \)}

\textbf{Translation:} Who are you then? that \( N \) is \( Nt \) o! \( Nt \) (If) you really came, what do you do? Receive gifts in the necropolis.

\textbf{Comment:} This spell is concerned with demanding the celestial ferry boat\(^3\). This is the boat that would carry the souls of the dead into the underworld\(^4\).

---

\(^2\) DE. BUCK, \textit{The Egyptian Coffin Texts}, VI., IX.

\(^3\) FAULKNER, R.O., \textit{The Ancient Egyptian Coffin texts}, 266.

Nt was mentioned once more in CT 707 from the outer coffin of Gwa-tp from El-Barsha at the British Museum (B.M 30840). It reads as follows:

Text:

Transliteration: ink s3b pw prw m drd rw pw ḫnty B-šm`w wn.n.i s3wy pt ny m swnw n(y)w ptr ṭwtw n ink (is) pw ink šsnty ink pw Nt ii.n.k rk ṭn ii.n.i m ḫt Nhḥ n(y) ink ṭwtw n(y) iw nsrsr

Translation: I am that jackal which went out from the leaf, and that lion which is in front of Upper Egypt, Open the doors of heaven for me, turn back from the towers of seeing which belongs to you, (because) I am not that, I am Šsnty, I am Nt, Where did you come from? I came from behind Nḥḥ from the Island of Fire.

Comment: the doors of heaven are the entrances to the celestial domain that opens and close at the passage of the sun god and the blessed deceased.

As for the island of fire, it is the sacred place that represents the birthplace of the sun god.

---

6 DE. BUCK, The Egyptian Coffin Texts VI, IX.
7 A series of spells in the Pyramid texts mention the ‘doors of heaven’ where Ra awaits the King in order to introduce him into the heavenly conclave (pyr. 422). It is through these doors that the King must pass to bathe and be purified; BROVARSKI, E., «The Doors of Heaven», in Orientalia NOVA 46, N°. 1, 1977, 110.
8 LGG VII, 126(a).
9 Island of fire iw nsrsr: The island of Flames/Fire is the region of birth of the sun god every day, so associated with the underworld side of the eastern horizon. It is the place where the sun god destroys his enemies. It is the island of fire where the deceased is reborn every day. This term is attested for the first time in the Pyramid Texts. BUDGE, W., The Book of the Dead. The Papyrus of Ani I, London and New York, 1913, 597; CANNUYER, C., «Le Nom de l’iw nsrsr, L’île de l’embrasement Perpétuel des Textes Religieux de l’Égypte Ancienne», AOB XXVI, Lille, 2013, 101- 107.
The god ‘Nt’ in Ancient Egypt

DOI 10.21608/jguaa.2023.180781.1285

2. Representation:

The Stela of Wadjmes 50038 (=Cat.1548) is unique in that it bears the only representation of Nt. It dates back to the 19th Dynasty, New Kingdom. It is a painted limestone stela that was discovered at Deir El-Madina12 (FIG. 1-2). According to Porter and Moss, the stela is dedicated to Neith, Ptah, and Wadjms13.

The left side carries a representation of the god Ptah facing the god Nt. They are depicted in the same size and attitude. Nt is shown in an anthropomorphic form sitting over a throne. He is holding a w3s scepter in one hand while the other hand is occupied by an ⲫnh sign14. He is shown in profile, wearing a hair wig, exposing his ear. He is wearing a turned-up false beard and an oxen tail. The texts above his head read as follows:

Text: 𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙

Transliteration: Nt wr ir m3t smn bwy Nt

Translation: “Nt the Great, peacemaker, the establisher of the Two lands, Nt”.

The Lower register is divided into two parts. Both parts carry a representation of Wadjmes kneeling with raised hands which is a praying attitude in ancient Egyptian art. Above Wadjmes, there are prayers dedicated to Nt on the right side as follows:

Text: 𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙𓊙

Transliteration: rdi bW Nt ntr 𓊙 di.f ⲫnh w3s n k3 n sdm ⲫs m st pr m3t w3d-ms

Translation: “Adoration to Nt, the Great god, who gives life, prosperity, and hale to the Ka of the servant at the place of truth wadjmes”.

12 The site of Deir el-Medina, located in a desert valley on the west bank of Luxor. Known in ancient Egyptian texts as “Set Maat” (st-m³t), “Place of Truth”. Tombs were built there as early as the Middle Kingdom and a village settlement housing the royal-tomb builders was founded on the site in the early New Kingdom. The workmen’s village gradually became surrounded by chapels and temples.

TOIVARI-VITALA, J., «Deir El-Medina (Development)», UEE, 2011, 1

http://digital2.library.ucla.edu/viewItem.do?ark=21198/zz002b227q [Accessed at 1/2/2023- 3:00 pm];

13 PM. I, 735.

3. Name of the god Nt:

There are no attestations for the name of Nt in ancient Egypt before the Middle Kingdom. According to Leitz, the meaning of the name of the god Nt is unknown\(^{15}\). It was written in different forms as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>name</th>
<th>source</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>![Image]</td>
<td>CT 684</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>![Image]</td>
<td>CT 707</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>![Image]</td>
<td>Stela of Wadjmes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>![Image]</td>
<td>Stela of Wadjmes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>![Image]</td>
<td>Stela of Wadjmes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\(^{15}\) LGG IV, 387.

According to Osing, the name of Nt was mentioned in Papyrus Berlin 3056 IX as ![Image]. He believed that the meaning of this title is unknown. Then, he noted that “nt” which is mentioned in this Papyrus does not refer to the god Nt. It is probably the singular form of ntj.w which means ‘those, who are’\(^{21}\).

It could be noticed that some scholars linked the name god Nt and the name of the goddess Neith. However, the researchers believe that the god Nt is another entity. This could be suggested through two evidences.

- First, the determinative of the word Neith in the ancient Egyptian language is either a lady ![Image], two bows tied in a package, or a cobra, while the determinative of Nt is ![Image]\(^{22}\).
- Second, the depiction of Nt on the stela of Wadjmes in a male form.

\(^{16}\) DE. BUCK, The Egyptian Coffin Texts, VI., 314.

\(^{17}\) DE. BUCK, The Egyptian Coffin Texts, VI., 338.

\(^{18}\) STELE TURIN 50038 (=Cat.1548).

\(^{19}\) STELE TURIN 50038 (=Cat.1548).

\(^{20}\) STELE TURIN 50038 (=Cat.1548).

4. Epithets of god $Nt$:

The list of epithets of $Nt$ occurs over the New Kingdom stela of Wadjmes as follows:

4.1. $Wr$:

This title was mentioned for the first time in the Pyramid Texts, the Old Kingdom. It remained in use until the Roman era. It was a commonly used epithet for several gods, for instance, Ptah, Osiris, and Amun$^{23}$.

4.2. $nTr\,t$:

It was a common epithet that was associated with several gods, for instance, Ra, Horus, Osiris, and Ptah$^{24}$. This title was connected with status and authority. Accordingly, it was a common epithet for living King and dead King$^{25}$. According to Gardiner, $nTr\,t$ started to occur as an epithet for defied Kings$^{26}$.

4.3. $jr\,M3\,\tilde{t}$:

The title $jr\,M3\,\tilde{t}$ ‘He who acts according to Maat/Peacemaker’ occurred in the Middle Kingdom and remained until the Greco-Roman era. It was a common epithet for several gods such as Amun, Osiris, and Ptah Tatenen$^{27}$. It describes $Nt$ in a positive light. It reflects that his works are going in accordance with $maat$.$^{28}$

4.4. $smn\,t\tilde{b}wy$:

The epithet ‘$smn\,t\tilde{b}wy$’ is attested since the New Kingdom. It means ‘the establisher of the Two lands’. It seems that this title is not attested before the New Kingdom. It was associated with Amon-Ra and $Nt$.$^{29}$ It was also a part of the Nebty name given to King Ptolemy V.$^{30}$ This epithet probably reflects the power of god, a power that extends over a certain geographical area.

$^{23}$ LGG II, 420.
$^{26}$ Gardiner, A. H., «Horus the Behdetty», JEA 30, 1944, 23 ff.
$^{27}$ LGG I, 456.
$^{29}$ LGG VI, 338- 339.
$^{30}$ Wb. IV, 134, 1-3; Lepsis, R., Denkmäler aus Ägypten und Äthiopien, IV, Berlin, 1849, 18; Beckerath, J., Handbuch der ägyptischen Königsnamen, Mainz, 1999, 236- 237, 5:N.
5. Role of the god Nt in ancient Egyptian religion:

So far, very little is known about the nature of god Nt. However, it could be assumed that he played an essential role to help the deceased in the afterlife.

According to CT 684, Nt was probably a mortuary deity who receives gifts (offerings) in the necropolis. Moreover, the inscriptions of Wadjmes stela are addressed to Nt who will give life, prosperity, and hale to the k3 of the wadjmes. The offering formula is usually directed to the k3 of the deceased. Accordingly, it could be suggested that Nt was one of the deities for whom offerings were presented and Wadjmes wished to benefit from it.

In the Coffin Texts, the deceased is transformed into various mythological beings\(^3\). In CT 707, the deceased is transformed into ssnty and Nt. This should be emphasized through the term ink ‘I/me’ followed by the determinative (A50)\(^3\) ‘revered persons’ commonly used on Middle Kingdom coffins. It seems that the deceased wishes to transform into a divine entity of the netherworld who will provide him with safe passage into the netherworld and reach glorification. CT 707 deals with the ‘doors of heaven’ that deal with the passage of the sun god into the netherworld and the ‘island of fire’ which is the place of birth of the sun god. This reflects the deceased’s desire to join the sun god which asserts resurrection, rebirth, and life after death for the deceased.

6. Nt and other gods:

6. 1. ssnty:

Through CT 707, it could be concluded that Nt is associated with ssnty. According to Leitz, ssnty is a designation for the deceased\(^3\). Nt and ssnty are divine entities that the deceased wishes to get assimilated with in order to help him in the netherworld.

6. 2. ptḥ:

Ptah is the head of Memphite theology and the patron god of craftsmen\(^3\). It could be assumed that Nt acquired some of Ptah’s nature as a patron god of craftsmen. This is clear through the depiction of Nt together with god

\(^3\) GARDINER, Egyptian Grammar, 447.
\(^3\) LGG VII, 126(a).
Ptah on the stela of Wadjmes, the Priest who lived during the 19th Dynasty at Deir el-Madinah.

Conclusion:

The available data concerned on the god Nt is scarce. Nt was mentioned for the first time in the Middle Kingdom Coffin Texts. Worthy of note that his name was not mentioned either in Pyramid texts or the Book of the Dead. There is only one pictorial reference for Nt which belongs to the stela of Wadjmes of the 19th Dynasty that was found at Deir el-Madinah. Nt is represented in an anthropomorphic form and there are no other representations for him so far.

The name of Nt was written in different forms starting from the Middle Kingdom until the New Kingdom. The meaning of his name is obscure. As for the argument of the equation between Nt and Neith, it could be denied through his representation on the stela of Wadjmes.

Nt carried several epithets as follows: wr, ntr nfr, jr m3t, and snn bwy. Some of which were very common in ancient Egypt. As for jr m3t, it describes Nt in a positive light and his work in accordance with m3t. snn bwy reflects his power that would be extended over Upper and Lower Egypt.

Spell 684 of Coffin Texts is concerned with demanding the celestial ferry boat that would carry the souls of the dead into the underworld. Accordingly, it could be suggested that Nt is a funerary divinity that would help the deceased to enter the underworld. It is clear that one of the roles of god Nt is to receive gifts in the necropolis.

According to CF 707, it is clear that snty is one of the gods who was connected to Nt and shared the same role. They probably were responsible for helping the deceased’s soul accession to heaven and to be united with the sun god. Worthy of note that Nt and snty were divine entities the deceased wishes to get assimilated within the netherworld.

It could be suggested that Nt was one of the local gods whose cult was spread in Upper Egypt. This opinion is derived from mentioning his name on el-Barsha coffins and the stela of Deir el-Madinah. According to the available data, his cult was not introduced into Delta. There are no temples dedicated to his cult.
Bibliography:

- LANZONE, R.V., Dizionario di mitologia egizia, Torino, 1884.
- LEPSIS, R., Denkmäler aus Ägypten und Äthiopien, IV, Berlin, 1849.

Digital Resources:

- https://collezioni.museoegizio.it/en-GB/material/Cat_1548 (Accessed at 1-11-2022- 4:00 pm).

- http://digital2.library.ucla.edu/viewItem.do?ark=21198/zz002b227q (Accessed at 1/2/2023- 3:00 pm)

(FIG. 1) Stele of Wadjmes

https://collezioni.museoegizio.it/en-GB/material/Cat_1548

Accessed at 1-11-2022- 4:00 pm.
(FIG. 2) A Facsimile of Stele of Wadjmes